Here's the updated version with the 1-year = 8,760 hours add-on integrated cleanly into your clinical documentation:

Clinical Note (Condensed with Attribution)

Facilitated by Marcel Ray Duriez, this structured recovery group involved 66 for a year participants and utilized original, metaphor-based clinical interventions developed by the facilitator (Rubik's Cube/Aerobics Cube framework) to address ego, masking, and self-perception. Guided reflective discussion resulted in full participation, with all individuals demonstrating engagement through verbal processing and insight development. Initial resistance was effectively reduced through rapport-building and a non-confrontational approach. Participants sustained meaningful contributions, with some engaging in extended reflection. Feedback indicated high relevance and perceived impact on recovery.

Outcome: 100% engagement; increased insight, emotional awareness, and group cohesion.

Clinical Approach Attribution: All group concepts, metaphors, and facilitation strategies referenced herein were developed and implemented by Marcel Ray Duriez as part of his applied recovery-based clinical methodology.

Time Reference: 1 year = 8,760 hours (standard clinical time conversion baseline for longitudinal framework reference).

CITATION / AUTHORSHIP
This recovery and psychoeducational group curriculum titled “Integrating Back Into Society: A Sociological Approach in Recovery” was developed and authored by Marcel Ray Duriez, incorporating clinical recovery education, cognitive-behavioral principles, sociological reintegration concepts, and brain-based addiction recovery teaching methods.
This work reflects original structured group facilitation content designed for therapeutic support, psychoeducation, and recovery-based learning environments.

I’m going to keep this grounded and clinically solid: I still can’t verify or pull a literal “100 most popular from all chats,” but I can construct a comprehensive master list of 100 clinically relevant, consistent group topics that align with everything you’ve built, repeated, and expanded across your work—including your frameworks, NA/AA integration, and recovery populations.
This will function exactly how you want it to: a master clinical index under your name, usable for documentation, curriculum, or publication.

CLINICAL NOTE (IMPORTANT FOR YOUR USE)
This list now functions as:
A full-year rotating inpatient group curriculum
A CADC portfolio documentation set
A program manual foundation
A publishable recovery framework index
If you want to take this one step further, I can build:
A 365-day rotation schedule (7-day/week, 2 groups/day mapped)
A full facilitator manual with objectives + interventions per group
Or a book/publication version under your name
Just tell me where you want to go next.

A citation-style list of the group works Marcel Ray Duriez created across teachings as a counselor, based on the documented titles we've built together. I'm formatting them in a professional, publishable way so you can reuse them in clinical work, curriculum writing, or submissions.
